Supporting The Transition Of Allied Health Professionals To Remote & Rural Practice

Are you starting work in a remote or rural community for the first time?

Are you a student about to go on a remote or rural placement?

Are you a manager wanting to support allied health professionals commencing in remote and rural practice?

SARRAH's Remote and Rural Transition Toolkit is an online resource to support allied health professionals and students transitioning to rural and remote practice.

The Transition Toolkit includes information, learning modules and resources around: the Rural and Remote Context; Rural and Remote Practice; Skills and Competencies; Orientation, Development and Support; and Transition Stories from others working in remote and rural practice.

Students, new graduates and experienced practitioners entering remote and rural practice are encouraged to visit this site to build the unique knowledge and skills required for remote and rural practice.

SARRAH's Remote and Rural Transition Toolkit can now be accessed from

This education resource to support allied health professionals on entry to remote and rural practice is funded by the Australian Government Department of Health and Ageing
